Many states have begun to end mask mandates and other COVID-19 prevention measures, but we recognize that the pandemic is still impacting communities across Indian Country.

As we move forward, it is important that we continue to protect those that are precious to us by following local guidance and being respectful of those around us. With tribal sovereignty and local differences in COVID spread, some communities may have different rules depending on their needs.

Check with your tribal government or local health provider to learn more about guidance for your community. And, do what feels safe and comfortable to protect you and your family in situations where guidance has become more relaxed.